

My Train Ride

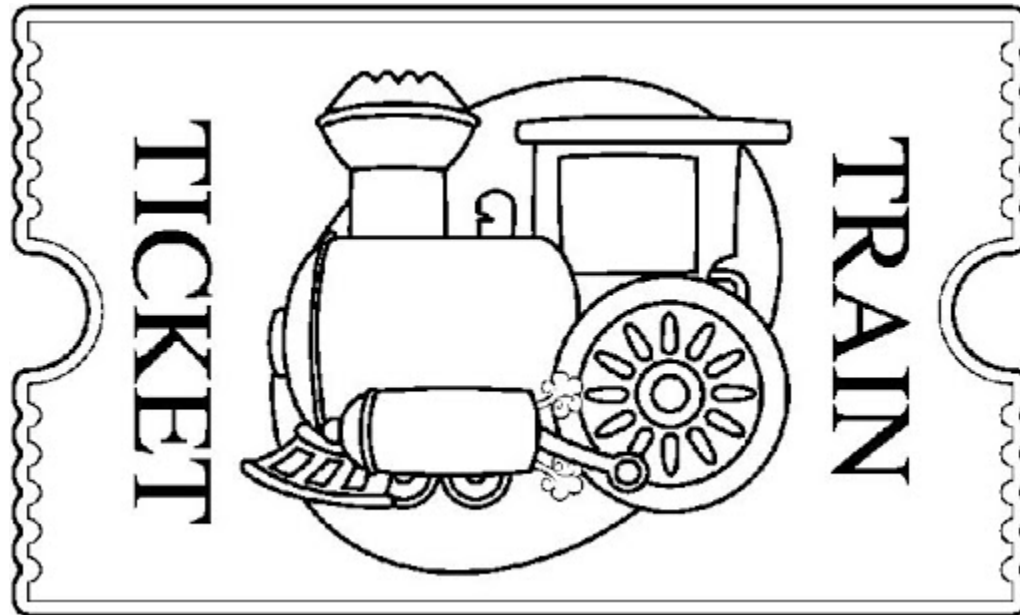

A social story presented by the B&O Railroad Museum

I am visiting the B&O Railroad Museum! When I visit, I will ride a train.

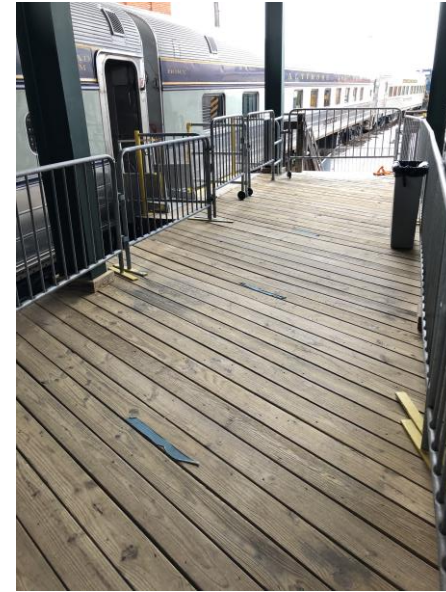

I will have a ticket for the train. When it is time to board the train, there will be an announcement on the speakers in the Museum.

There are no restrooms on the train. If I need to use the bathroom, I should ask my grownup to take me there before we go to the train platform.

After I hear the announcement, I will go with my grownup to Platform 2 and wait in line. The noise from the train engine might be loud. If it is too loud, I can ask for special headphones to make it quiet.

The train has an Engineer and a Conductor. They will drive the train and keep everyone safe. I will board the train when the Conductor says “All aboard!”.

When I board the train, the Conductor will show me where to sit. Once I find a seat, I will stay in my chair while the train is moving.

Sometimes the train will stop at the First Mile Stables. This is a place with horses and police officers who take care of the horses. If I do not want to see where the horses live, I will ask my grownup to stay on the train with me.

If I want to see the horses, I will follow directions and stay with my grownup as we exit the train. When I go into the barn, I might smell something strange! If I do not like the smell of the barn, I can ask my grownup to go back to the train with me.

When everyone returns to the train, it will start moving again.

When the train returns to the Museum, I will stay in my seat until it is my turn to leave the train. Then I will wait for my grownup to tell me what we will do next!

I will have a fun train ride when I visit the B&O Railroad Museum!
