

Taking a Field Trip at the B&O Railroad Museum

A Social Narrative for Young Children

I am going on a field trip to the B&O Railroad Museum!

When my group arrives, we will park in the parking lot. If we walk instead, I will walk down the sidewalk and through the gate.

Before we go inside, we will line up at the entrance to the museum. A museum staff member will meet us outside to help. I will listen carefully for directions to stay safe.

When we go inside, we will go into the Roundhouse for our introduction. It is important for me to listen so I know the rules and the schedule.

There are different special activities I might get to do at the museum. I will ask my teacher if we will do a workshop, a tour, or a train ride.

I might be eating lunch at the museum instead of school. My teacher will tell me if I should pack a lunch.

After we complete our activities, we will be able to explore the museum! There are many different galleries to explore, and even some trains I can go inside. It is important for me to always stay with my adult.

When it is time to go back to school I will follow directions to exit the museum safely. I am going to have a fun field trip at the B&O Railroad Museum!
